

ZAP PRONTO JUNIOR

DUNG: No, I think I shall toy with them first. Let's see. What foul things can I torment them with before I send my legions to force their submission to my will... and steal all of their 'bases'? Hum... Plague of Locust? No, that's been done to death. I could cause their sun to explode... No, no, that's too quick. I want to watch them squirm.

That's it!

(Goes to Machine and starts setting it) I will prepare my secret Interstellar Heat Ray. Point it at this planet 'Earth' and set it to increase the temperature by a small amount every year. We shall witness their feeble attempts to alleviate the problem. They shall recycle aluminum cans. They shall drive hybrids and add insulation to their homes. They shall elect democrats. But still their crops will fail, their ice caps will melt, and their beachfront condos will be under water. By the time they know what's happening it'll be too late. Ha ha ha ha!

This monologue is free for performance in all educational and professional settings. Students need not seek permission from the author to perform at competitions. Zap Pronto Junior is published in full by Matter Deep Publishing ©2017. Find paperback copies on amazon.com.

ZAP PRONTO JUNIOR

