

ZAP PRONTO JUNIOR

GALE: Simmer down bat boy. Professor, that seems like just giving up. We can't just crawl into the caves like a bunch of frightened rabbits. Where's that can do spirit. Where's the drive and ingenuity that made this the greatest country on earth. Where would we be if the Pilgrims called it quits when the going got tough, or if George Washington surrendered because he was cold? What if Lewis and Clark simply gave up because they didn't have a map? Did the pioneers turn tail when they came to a river that was too deep to cross? No they did not! They caulked their wagons and floated them across. This country was founded on the grit and determination of ordinary people seeking a better life and the ingenuity of geniuses like Alexander Graham Bell and Thomas Edison. We can't just let this happen. There must be something we can do. Come on, think man!

This monologue is free for performance in all educational and professional settings. Students need not seek permission from the author to perform at competitions. Zap Pronto Junior is published in full by Matter Deep Publishing ©2017. Find paperback copies on amazon.com.

ZAP PRONTO JUNIOR

